game in which the Glants dimmed the Reds and Rube Marquard by 6 to 3 afternoon. It scintillated with kaleidoscopic effects as the New Yorks, recovered from two wretched disappointthe left field bleachers with the bases full in the first inning-twinkled as Davy Bancroft duplicated the feat with one run—faced only sixteen men and allowed nary a Red to reach first base. It was one, two, three for the Cincinnatis in every inning as Shea spun over a fast one with a tricky hop, a slow ball that really was a slow ball—and all the while with superb control.

ENDURANCE.

Is endurance becoming a lost quality? A few years ago baseball teams used to win a flock of pennants in a row, and tennis and golf champions were wont to repeat their victories year after year. They don't appear to be doing it any more.

really was a slow ball—and all the while with superb control.

Fritz Coumbe, the left hander, hurled the last six innings for the Reds and her very success only two hits, but he also issued three passes. A sixth Glant got to first off him on an error by Boine. In all the New Yorks got six hits and the Reds well-sated only four.

me yesterday, but he no longer could and the strain of fraction. He went t and played all over the outfield and ed hits all over it, too, and scored lined hits all over it, too, and scored two runs.

All this happened in a setting which discouraged rather than roused. At the start there were leaden, threatening skies, and soon there came a penetrating, incessant rain. In the stands a mere four thousand huddled in enjoyment of the spectacle. And the Giants played as if 30,000 were back there roaring their encouragement.

In the field they were led by Bancroft, who flashed all afternoon and figured in two double plays which brought the New York total of two play killings to eighteen for the eight games played since their return from the West. This may be something of a record. Bannie's great run into left centre for Groh's fly in the fifth and his dash behind third to cut off Roush's hit and retire the runner in the eighth were his masterpleces. ner in the eighth were his masterpleces.

Kelly's great stop on Kopf and his throw to double Wingo at the midway in the second inning was another bit of bright fielding.

soon as he threw the first ball to Burns, who singled to centre.

Bancroft grounded to Daubert, who ignored the play at first base and attempted to land Burns. But Jake hit George in the small of the back, and while Reds scurried into centre for the ball the Giant ran to third. Friscs flied to Duncan and Young walked, filling the bases.

This was an ideal setting for one of felly's home runs. Twice before this eason he had driven the ball into the fit field bleachers with three on—and on he did it again. That ball which felly hit he really had no right to touch. Inning Game.

The Reds opened the game with a score and hit Toney hard. Neale started the first with a single to left and Bohne sacrificed. Groh singled to centre and sacrificed. Gron single and Dau-secored Neale. Roush walked and Dau-bert grounded to Bancroft. Toney was almost knocked off his feet by Duncan's

THE LISTENING POST

Conwight, 1921, by THE NEW BURK HELD ALL THAT MATTIERS.

In peace or strife, in sport or life, The moral is the sames: It isn't if you win or lose, But how you play thet game.

CHAMPIONS.

It always has seemed to us that the human race is inclined to take a Pitches Perfect Ball After champion very seriously. Let somebody do so mething better than anybody somewhat slothful for two innings to day and Shawkey began in an unprom a pedestal.

Thus the champion becomes the idol of the populace—a supposedly invincible, highly idealized being. But the public never stops to realize that the very foundation upon which the perkestal stands is composed of the dust of a long line of champions dead and gone.

the dust of a long line of champions dead and gone.

Disappointment in an ideal is one of the hitterest of human emotions. It frequently is harder to forgive those who disappoint us than those who wrong us. Therefore, the downfall of a title limiter frequently is taken as almost a personal affront by distant and total strangers, as well as by followers and acquaintances. In what always was an alloy they see only on the sodden Polo Grounds yesterday the dross where formerly they saw only the gold. It isn't an easy job to ments, flashed through the spectrum on attack and defence—sparkled as George baseball teams play their heads off against New York. "It undoubtedly is Kelly's twentieth home run crashed into true," he said, "that other teams save their best pitchers and their best efthe left field bleachers with the bases full first place, they are a little sensitive. They want to show the Gothamites that they are not such hot stuff, even if they do come from the big city. Of course, another reason is that New York is apt to be pretty well up in the race And after Marquard and then Fred and draws a large attendance, which always is stimulating to play. And then most players would like to play in New York and haven't any objection to test dazzled with pitching brilliancy. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory played superbly at Forest Hills on Tuesday. In her very successful career she probably never rose to greater tennis heights. On the courts she gives an impression of power and efficiency conveyed by few women. Moreover, she appears to have gained in both aggressiveness

We are told that Mrs. Mallory says that the newspapers have been unfair to her. If this is so it is a pity, but it seems to us that such a statement is a trifle unfair on the part of Mrs. Mallory. Since she came here, an unknown Three of the New York hits—two singles and a double—were accounted for by George Burns, who made a glorious return after having been out for two days nursing three stitches around his left eye. Burns should have been at home yeaterday, but be no longer could have been at her best on Tuesday, for she needed her best to meet the same with the result of the same with the same with the same with the result of the same with the same with her best on Tuesday, for she needed her best to meet the game which Mrs Mallory displayed. It is even more to be regretted that the famous French girl should have been permitted by her advisers to start a contest which she found herself unable to finish. The tennis committee is free from blame, as it had already shown the visitor the courtesy of postponing her first match in

OR ANY OTHER CLUB.

It seems to us that we have met A string of golf clubs without end, But never found a putter yet That ever grew to be a friend.

When no other rule appears to fit the case in football a player may be disqualified or a team penalized for "unsportsmanlike conduct." This rule should be made to apply to baseball. Purposely delaying a game, throwing a bat at a pitcher, the bean ball and many other things are scarcely in accord with any true ideas of sport.

Several bettors have wagered that Babe Ruth not only will break his so no matter home run record, but that he also will make more home runs than any other two men in the big leagues. They are apt to collect.

Chick Harley, the former star of Ohio State, has signed with a professional football team in Illinois. Professional football appears to be mainly confined to the middle West.

Revenge on the Rube.

There was great satisfaction for the Giants in lashing vengeance on Marquard. Many an indignity had he heaped on them in recent seasons, and rarely. If ever before, had they been sale to drive him to cover so quickly and with so terrific and effective an attack. Marquard was in a tight place as soon as he threw the first ball to Burns, who singled to centre.

Whole instructing a feminine pupil in the use of a mashic recently a pennsylvania golf professional had the bridge of his nose completely wrecked. When the lady swung he was so incautious as to stand behind her. If he had her instructing her in the use of the niblick he probably would have lost his head.

Babe Hits Ball Over Fence Toward Lake Michigan-Sox Lose by 11 to 3.

By WILLIAM B. HANNA.

pecial Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—The Yankees were ising way, but matters soon righted themselves. The last pilgrimage to the West began with a victory over th

White Sox by a score of 11 to 3.

The Yankees hit and fielded and did everything else pretty well once they warmed up to it. They stacked up against poor pitching, however. Ruth sent his forty-fifth home run out of the enclosure, across lots and toward Lake Michigan. When last seen it was going east and passing the Eric Canal.

The Vankees opened the game as if The Yankees opened the game as if they were suffering from too much barn-storming, which was not surprising as they had just put in three days on one good deal of pep and his command in the third inning to Schang to "get on" was obeyed. Schang "got on" by wait-ing for four balls. He filtred to third when Shawkey singled and home when Wilkinson unreefed a wild pitch. Miller's Hits by Shawkey and Peck in the fourth, Miller's sacrifice, Ruth's out at first, by way of Johnson, and a neat trick in base running enabled the Yarks to recover these two runs. Baker, who had walked, ambled toward second with the pitcher holding the ball. The Sox infield was caught off guard and Peck slipped in with a score. Shawkey with his third single batted in one in the fifth.

Walker, Hit by Batted Ball, Taken to Hospital

LEVELAND, Aug. 17.—First Baseman Johnny Waiker of the Athletics was hit on the right side of the head with a ball batted by Jamieson in the first inning of to-day's game with the Indians. He was knocked unconsclous. Waiker was taken to Lakeside Hospital, where it was found he was suffering from concussion of brain. Waiker will be out of the game at least ten days, according to Dr. H. M. Castle, physician to members of the baseball club, who is attending the injured player at the hospital.

Dr. Castle reported late to-night that the injury Walker received was concussion of the brain and that an X-ray showed no evidence of fracture. The ball struck him on the right side of the head about an inch above the ear.

Meusel Waits and Walks.

Meweeny was hustled to the slab and faced Meusel. Although the first two pitches were strikes, Meusel coolly waited and forced in a run by walking. Pip's out, Collins to Sheely, made it through Mulligan. Schang made an infield single and Ward, running with his head down, turned third and found himself in a trap.

The Yankee defence cracked and creaked in the last half of the third. Peck fumbled Mulligan's grounded, but apparently recoved in time to throw the runner out. Carpentier Not Decided as to His Future in Ring

Whether He Fights Again to Depend on Result of Thorough Physical Examination.

Paris, Aug. 17 .- Georges Carpentier has not decided whether he will fight Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul light heavyweight. In fact, it is not certain whether he will remain in the ring at

The French heavyweight says it all depends upon the result of a thorough examination by specialists, which he plans to undergo at the end of several weeks' vacation. He declares he is still worried by his swollen thumb and also will have his heart examined.

Carpentier declares that if he finally retires he is prepared to take the end of his fighting career philosophically, having been a boxer for fifteen years. An Amsterdam despatch to the Auto-early to-day said that Carpentier's next battle would be with Vanderveer, the Dutch heavyweight, at Sheveningen, a bathing resort in Holland, next month.

Lee King Loses Diamond Pin.

Lee King, left fielder for the Philadelphia National League baseball team, left a $500 diamond horseshoe pin in his locker at the Polo Grounds last Monday, with some compunctions, he admitted yesterday, and when the game was over the pin was gone. The locker had been jimmled, but no money or other valuables were stolen. The mystery was turned over to the police of the West 135th street police station, but when last night no progress had been made in the search the loss was made public. The pin was given to King by his Philadelphia admirers.

Otto Knabe of the local American Association club was fined $100 and indefinitely suspended to-day by President Hickey of the association for an argument with Umpire Mullen here last Saturday. Knabe was not in uniform to-day.

Knabe and Wilbur Good, local out-fielder, who also was fined $25, protested the action of the umpire in call-ling the second game of a doubleheader with Minneapolis at the end of the seventh inning, with Kansas City one run behind. Knabe was accused also of urging the crowd to heckle the arbiter.
